“It must have been so difficult in the days before computers .”

Community...

6 I was 33 year in the paper mill and I always thought I would see my time out in it...I would see my retirement in it but the sad reality is that it closed. But in the time I had great happy memories in it, a lot of sad memories as well. I would say probably the greatest was in the old mill, that was probably the best time I had. There was a lot of good guys, a lot of good people in it, as I say a lot of families. It was very family orientated; people connected to one another in it. One of the reasons a lot of people got jobs in it was somebody would speak up for you. If you were looking for employment your dad or your uncle would go speak to the managers, the bosses, and get you a job in the paper mill. So it was a big help. The sad thing is that it's not there now.
